

Lexus to Compete in 2014 Japanese Super GT Series with New Vehicle

August 15, 2013

Image not found or type unknown

TOKYO – Aug. 16, 2013 – Lexus Racing announced a new race car based on the Lexus “LF-CC” that will compete in the Super GT Series GT500 class starting next season. The vehicle will replace the Lexus SC 430 currently used in Super GT races.

The Lexus LF-CC is a two-door coupe concept that debuted at the Paris Motor Show in September 2012. It features a dynamic exterior with an emphasis on aerodynamics and cooling performance.

Vehicle shakedown will begin at the Suzuka Circuit this afternoon.